

Getting outside in winter

Exposure to nature carries benefits to our mental and physical health. Here's some ideas to make the most of our chilly Alberta winter- just be sure to bundle up and stay warm! Check out the City of Edmonton website for more!

Take a stroll

Try using the Discover YEG map to find pedestrian routes, local trails, and parks near you! Snowshoeing can also be a great way to use snowy parks safely.

Hit the slopes

Make the most of the snow, and get on some skis! Check out CADS Edmonton: an organization making snowsports more accessible, offering adaptive skiing/boarding programs each winter. Not into downhill? Find cross-country ski routes in Edmonton for all levels here. The City of Edmonton also has programs to learn to cross-country ski!

Go skating

Find a public outdoor rink near you, and get on the ice (or watch a hockey game from the sidelines)! You can locate city rinks and check ice status here.

Try tobogganning

Have fun and get active with tobogganning! Check out the City of Edmonton site and this guide to tobogganning in the city. Just don't forget your helmet!

Enjoy your own backyard

Winter in Edmonton is a great time for activities from birdwatching to snowman-building. You don't need to travel far to get fresh air and a meaningful exposure to nature- you can reap the benefits of the outdoors from your very own doorstep!
